Ginger Martin lives on her late husband's farm in the Shenandoah Valley, raising three young children and working as a nurse. Now her in-laws want to sell the farm, and Ginger is wondering how she can keep it when money is so tight and there is no one to do the work. But the farm is her children's legacy, and Ginger is determined to hold on to her home. The sudden appearance of a stranger dressed in a Civil War uniform will change everything for the Martin family. The mystery man turns out to be Samuel Annanais, a Confederate soldier killed in battle but unable to move on to the next world. Somehow, the Martins are able to interact with him, and Samuel becomes an important part of life on the farm. Dickson, whose first novel, Casting Off (2009), was a top entry for the Amazon Breakthrough Novel Award, seamlessly blends past and present in this deeply satisfying novel of a family coming together after a devastating loss, finding strength in the most unexpected of places, and discovering exactly where they truly belong. --Carol Gladstein

Review

Praise for Here and Again "If you could seamlessly blend the movie The Field of Dreams with Audrey Niffenegger's The Time Traveler's Wife and season liberally with John Jakes' North and South, you might find yourself with this unputdownable book. Dickson deftly draws the humanity out of two wars in which the U.S. has seen many horrors and places Ginger's story against a backdrop that blends scars from the two....Ginger's pain will resonate and stick with readers who will want to move to a farm - with horse-drawn plows - and hug each and every one in Ginger's circle." - RT Review June 2014

Praise for Casting Off

"A beautiful novel of letting go, healing, and redemption. Setting her story in the west of Ireland, Nicole Dickson draws the reader deeply into the magic of a mystical land. A stunning debut."—New York Times bestselling author Susan Wiggs

“A remarkable novel about finding your true home, and of holding on and letting go. With lilting and lyrical language, Dickson immerses the reader in the lives and histories of a cluster of tightly knit families on an island off the coast of Ireland. I could hear the soft Irish voices and taste the salty spray of the ocean as Dickson worked her storytelling magic, creating characters as complex and beautiful as the Irish sweaters at the heart of the story. This was a hard-to-put-down book, and I’m already anticipating the next offering from this wonderful author.”—New York Times bestselling author Karen White

“With a pattern as intricate as the sweaters knit in the novel, Nicole Dickson weaves her words into a powerful story of redeeming love and forgiveness. Casting Off grabbed my heart on page one and didn’t let go until the last breathtaking sentence.”— New York Times bestselling author Patti Callahan Henry

Deep in the Shenandoah Valley, the present and the past are as restless as the river mists. And when they collide, the heart is the only compass pointing home.

For nurse Ginger Martin, her late husband's farm is both a treasured legacy and the harbinger of an uncertain future. Since he was recently killed in Iraq, every day is fraught with grief that won't abate. Keeping the farm going and nourishing her children's hopes without him seems as impossible as having dreams for the future—or going back into the past....

By a curious coincidence, a stranger appears in Ginger's life, always showing up to help in unexpected and much-needed ways. He says he's a soldier, lost and trying to make his way home, but Ginger understands that Samuel is a kindred spirit, longing to repair a life interrupted. The challenges of their hopes and longings will test who they really are in the most heartbreaking of ways. And only by coming to terms with their losses and the necessity of change will Ginger and Samuel be able to each make a future of their own—and discover at last where their true home lies....

Beautifully Done!

By C Quilts

The story of Ginger, Samuel, her deceased husband, and neighbors that she meets along the journey are beautifully woven together in this novel! Love the historical details, and the descriptions as the story shifts back and forth between Ginger's and Samuel's perspectives.

After losing her husband in Iraq, Ginger has 3 kids to raise. Living on the farm where her husband grew up, away from her own parents, she "runs in place" for lack of a better way to put it. Pouring out her grief one afternoon, in her husband's special spot, she meets Samuel.

Thus begins a profound journey for them both. A journey of love, healing, and coming together runs full circle in the book. Ginger and her three children live at the farm owned by her husband's grandmother. We see pieces of her and her husband's early life, as well as pieces of Samuel's life throughout the book. We see his parents trying to swindle the farm from the Grandmother. We see people in the story that really add to the detail, and also the life lessons in the book.

It was beautifully done - and illustrates that things do turn out differently than we plan, and be better than we ever thought! Great, great read!

Captivating!

By JBD

Nicole beautifully weaves past and present, grief and joy, seeking and finding among a cast of characters who steal your heart. I could not put it down.

Wonderful read

By J-Tahoe

Nicole captured me with the first letter and the first page of Chapter 1. I found myself thinking about the story when I wasn't reading it. I could not read it one sitting and realized that this was good, because it allowed me to savor it as I went along. I cried again and again. A great story for someone going through the grieving process. In my own grieving period, dreams became a part of the healing process. Nicole is a wonderful story teller. You will savor it too.
