“[Jesus and the Disinherited] is the centerpiece of the Black prophet-mystic’s lifelong attempt to bring the harrowing beauty of the African-American experience into deep engagement with what he called ‘the religion of Jesus.’ Ultimately his goal was to offer this humanizing combination as the basis for an emancipatory way of being, moving toward a fundamentally unchained life that is available to all the women and men everywhere who hunger and thirst for righteousness, especially those ‘who stand with their backs against the wall.’”

—Vincent Harding, from the Foreword

In this classic theological treatise, the acclaimed theologian and religious leader Howard Thurman (1900-1981) demonstrates how the gospel may be read as a manual of resistance for the poor and disenfranchised. Jesus is a partner in the pain of the oppressed and the example of His life offers a solution to ending the descent into moral nihilism. Hatred does not empower--it decays. Only through self-love and love of one another can God's justice prevail.

seeking to better understand how to reconcile the two

By Willie Newton

Very insightful read! It is said that Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., kept a copy of Thurman's book with him at all times. After reading this book, it is not difficult to understand why. Thurman brings the sociocultural experiences of African Americans into dialogue with the gospel of Jesus Christ, seeking to better understand how to reconcile the two. More important, he grapples with the practical theological implications of the gospel for the "least of these." What, for example, does the gospel say to the "homeless, the working and jobless poor, the substance abused and abusers, the alienated, misguided, and essentially abandoned young people (those with their "backs against the wall")? This work will enlarge one's thinking about the gospel and what it means to love one's self and one's neighbor as exemplified in the life, work, and teachings of Jesus.

A book every serious preacher should own

By Savalas R. Squire Sr

I have read this book 4 or 5 times over the past 10 years. I keep coming back to it because it speaks so directly to much of what we are witnessing today. If a minister, pastor, bishop, or any faith leader is looking for a book that speaks to the social responsibility that comes with the Gospel of Jesus, this is certainly one of the few that you want to own.

Great Insights, Thought-provoking Discussion of Racism.

By Cris M.

This book, though published in 1948, has a lot to say about the current state of race relations. Thurman provides enormous insight into what it means to be disinherited--and this does not just apply to black/white relations in America, but to all groups who are disinherited in some way. The book is also tremendously hopeful in that he talks openly about how Jesus' teachings can be applied to healing these wounds. I highly recommend this book for someone looking for a ray of light in our present darkness, and also for anyone who wants to see how Jesus' teachings can be applied today.
