It is definitely fiction where good triumphs over bad regardless of whatever barriers may arise

By David R. Baynes

It's 1930's pulp fiction targeting a specific group of people, those who either worked for or admired the railroad industry. It is definitely fiction where good triumphs over bad regardless of whatever barriers may arise. Myself, I'm one of the admirers and have always enjoyed the fantastical world created by Dellinger. So regardless of how hokey the plot and writing may be, it's my cup of tea.
