It's the same thing as the YouTube video but with low rez colored pictures.

Honestly Jordan, I would've been just fine if you stuck with just a more 'in-depth' discussion of each topic accompanied by hand drawn illustrations to make your point clearer.

The pages are in full color with very little illustration, and those that are are somewhat misplaced. It makes the book more expensive with unnecessary amount of color placement.

For your next book, I would recommend making things more centralized and organized in your diagrams.

DIAGRAMS, that's when you need illustrations.

Your YouTube series is one thing, but a book should cover what you want into further details. But don't be with holding information just so people 'have' to buy your books. Just cover what you can in animation, or just stick to animation and v-blogs. Either way, what's important is getting your message across.

The book is a nice touch, but it was not as effective *(or efficient) as your animations and journey v-blogs.

Books should cover the stuff that you wanted to discuss but didn't think of it at the time.

Your notes, your journey, your more personal experiences translated into text.
